One-day mountain bike trip: Chincheru, Moray & Salineras

STARTS AND END: Cusco

Three spectacular Inca sites joined together by a truly wonderful bike ride suitable for all ability levels, all with continuous views of the stunning central cordillera of the Andes: this day is very hard to top.

We'll pick you up from your accommodation at 9am and head for Chincheru (about an hour's drive from Cusco) where we'll check out the scenic Inca ruin before starting to ride dirt roads through farmland and rolling hills (Andean flat!) towards Moray – three deep, terraced amphitheatres where the Incas tried out different crops at different altitudes and angles to the sun. Salineras is even better – a still-working ancient salt factory that's as beautiful as it is fascinating, with a patchwork of coloured pools twinkling under the sun.

In between the two is an easy intermediate level ride (or you can walk it) with great range of terrain, consistent downhill, and an impressive array of options.

This is an unbeatable day which anybody who enjoys the outdoors will love.
